In between a bi-monthly bill is issued on a provisional basis. In other categories, the bills are issued on a monthly basis. During the period when the meter is defective and awaiting replacement, DESU charges provisionally depending on the past average consumption or on the sanctioned load, wherever past average consumption is not available. When the meter is replaced an assessment is made for the period meter had been defective. Arrears are charged for the meter-defective period, in case the amount arrived at on assessment after replacement of the meter is higher than the provisional billing during the period, then the assessment is revised as per the tariff rules and conditions of supply for the period the meter had been defective.
